MISSIONARY UPDATE

→Dr. Christopher & Nancy Zoolkoski
SIM Galmi Hospital, Niger

Dear Alderwood family,
Among our various roles here at SIM Galmi Hospital, one of our favorites is overseeing the Center for the Rehabilitation of Malnourished Children. Sometimes a child will arrive so severely malnourished that his weight will be the same as when he was born two years ago. These are indeed the neediest of the needy, the most vulnerable, and the most easily forgotten of this world. Unlike the majority of our patients who are with us for a week following their surgery or for several days recovering from malaria, the malnourished children and their mothers stay with us for an average of 4-6 weeks, allowing us to get to know them and to share with them more comprehensively the mystery and the hope of the Gospel of Jesus. Recently we had a "graduation" for one of the toddlers, Hamidou, who had regained his appetite and was making steady progress. After four weeks of nutritional support and education, he had reached his target weight and was ready to go home!

We congratulated the mother, whose name is Salamou, then asked her, "After being here for a whole month, what do you remember of what we've taught you about Jesus? Do you understand now why He came to this earth?"

"To save us," she replied. Then she started singing a song in Hausa that I had never heard before:

"Yesu ne, Yesu ne, Yesu ne Mai Ceto."

"Jesus is, Jesus is, Jesus is the Savior."

This Muslim woman was singing a song about Jesus being the Savior which none of us had taught her! We asked Salamou to teach us the rest of the song, which she did. "He suffered in this world. He shed his blood for God's glory." We asked her where she learned it.

"Dr. Kim taught us this song when I was five years old."

Then we realized she was talking about our former colleague, Dr. Kim Myers, who was here with her family when we first came to Galmi 17 years ago! Please pray with us that the words of this song will now get downloaded from Salamou's brain and into her heart and that malnourished Hamidou and all the others in their household will come to put their faith in the One who saves.

and family
